ALLIANCE FOR HEALTH POLICY

BIPARTISAN LEARNING COMMUNITIES
CONGRESSIONAL FELLOW

What's a health policy issue that personally motivates you?

A topic that has become politicized and divisive in our nation should be the most bipartisan – our mothers. As the fallout of the Dobbs v. Jackson decision was felt by everyday women in America, I recognized that within partisan spaces policy must focus on comprehensive health care for all mothers.

What's one thing you've learned during this fellowship that will stick with you?

This fellowship highlighted the importance of bipartisanship. Being able to openly share a diverse group of ideas and perspectives will lead to progress. This fellowship helped highlight the similarities between people across the aisle, and allowed me to identify spaces where progress is possible.

What's a strength you bring to health policy?

As a former district staffer, I bring a strong constituent perspective to health policy. A technical awareness of policy is important, but too often people in D.C. become disconnected from their constituencies. I aim to always focus on the individual constituents first, and the optics second.
